*'Daffodils, that come before the swallow dares, and take
The winds of March with beauty'*

– William Shakespeare, A Winter's Tale

As light begins to appear at the end of the tunnel of this peculiar time I have been reflecting on how important our gardens have been for our wellbeing this last year.

I think there is nothing quite so hopeful as the daffodil. They are the first cheering harbingers of spring in February or even January (Rijnvelts Early Sensation) and continue to delight us right through to late April or even May (poeticus), by which time the swallows are nesting. Most are totally trouble free – just plant (6" + deep please) and stand back. They can be grown in borders, many will cope with the exigencies of grass (shaded in green), some are small enough to fit in on a rock garden or fill jolly spring pots, to say nothing of their scent.

There are 3 exciting daffodil additions to our list this year: Spring

This dry spring might not suit everything but the species tulips have excelled themselves. As I write this the rock garden is a glorious mass of pink and yellow T. saxatilis and the main rock bank is covered with T. batalinii Bright Gem following on from the various T. clusiana cvs. All are very perennial and deserve to be more widely grown.

With everything from early crocus to late flowering alliums there is plenty to chose from to ensure your garden is a continuing delight.

those plants given the Award of Garden Merit by the RHS.
